English Language & Literature GCE A level

Work completed before 8th March 2021 - Historical data being used to help generate grades

Summer 2020 exams – we chose to set A Level style questions (typically extract analysis followed by a response to the text as a whole). Questions were based on the anthology poetry, Cat on a Hot Tin Roof and In Cold Blood

Work completed after 8th March 2021 - Current assessment data being used to help generate grades

Coursework: Students write an extended essay which investigates a genre of their choice by focusing on the links between two texts. This is followed by two shorter pieces of creative writing – one piece is fiction and the other is non-fiction

A 'King Lear' question. Students have a choice of questions and respond in essay style, demonstrating their understanding of the play, the deliberate choices of the writer and the text's context.

A question on 'The Color Purple'. The question comes in two parts: a response to an extract from the novel and a question which deals with the novel as a whole. Students demonstrate their understanding of the novel, the deliberate choices of the writer and the text's context. There is a choice of two questions.

Students write a comparison of an unseen text with their choice of two poems from the poetry anthology. Students have to demonstrate their understanding of texts, their contexts and connections between the texts.

Students write a comparison of 3 unseen 'spoken language' texts, demonstrating their understanding of spoken language features and connections between texts.

Coursework module: One 2500-3500 word assignment based on the reading of two prose texts from different periods, one pre-2000 and one post2000.

A question, from a choice of two, on Philip Larkin and Carol Ann Duffy poetry. Students write in essay style comparing poems.

A two part question on Paradise Lost. In the first part, students analyse a chosen extract from the text and in the second part they explore the text as a whole.

A two part question on King Lear. In the first part, students analyse a chosen extract from the play and in the second part they explore the play as a whole.

A question, from a choice of two, in which students analyse an unseen prose text. Students write in essay style and have 3 extracts from the prose text to use in their analysis.
